Hague, August 24.

M. Huguetan, who for some Time past has on divers Accounts made himself be much talk'd of in the World, has at last fled this Country: The Occasione is this,

He stands indebted to M. Jacques Butiny the Sum of 155000 Livres French Money, on a Bill of Exchange. For this Debt Butiny Sued him at Geneva, where Huguetan dwelt; and the Court of Justice there sentenc'd him provisionally to deposit the Money, or give Security for it, till the Merits of the Cause should be fairly examin'd and adjudg'd. Huguetan upon this presently withdrew from his House, and retir'd with his Effects out of the Jurisdiction of Geneva, to Holland, England, and other Countries: And after having roam'd about from Place to Place some Years, he at last settled at Utrecht. So that the Sentence of the Tribunal of Geneva could not be executed, nor did Butiny petition that Court to send requisitory Letters to foreign Tribunals to confirm their Sentence; not only because Huguetan kept no settled Habitation, but because he amus'd Butiny and his other Creditors (to whom Huguetan is said to be indebted above Sixty Tuns of Gold) with false Promises of coming to an Accommodation with them, and giving them Satisfaction: Upon which Promises some of his Creditors relying, took Pains themselves to procure for him Letters of Security or Protection for his Person from the States of Holland and West Friseland, first for the Term of Six Months, on an Allegation that he would make Use of that Time to agree with his Creditors. But after two Prolongations, each of 6 Months, of the Term granted by the said Letters on the Part of the States of Holland and West-Friseland, and also after like Letters for the Security of his Person had been granted by the States of Utrecht, he was so far from coming to any Manner of Composition with his Creditors, that he absolutely reject'd all the Propositions they offer'd to him: Tho' those Propositions were, that he should produce his Books and Papers, to shew what Condition his Affairs were in; and that if it appear'd he was not able to satisfy his Creditors, they would be content with Part of their Debts, and would leave the Proportion to be determin'd by his own Friends, provided he would name Men of fair Repute; and if he was not willing to lay open his Books and discover his Affairs, they would take his own Account blindly, provided he would make any tolerable Proposition; that so they might lose but a Part, not all their Debts. In short, upon his rejectting all Proposals, and settling at Utrecht, Butiny apply'd to the Tribunal of Geneva, who granted him their requisitory Letters to the Court of Justice of the Province of Utrecht, to confirm and put in Execution their foremention'd Sentence: And to induce the said

Court of Utrecht to have just Regard to the said Letters, it was represented to them, that Huguetan had impos'd upon the States, both of Holland and of Utrecht, by using false Pretences (namely that he desir'd Time to make an Accommodation with his Creditors) to gain their Letters of Security for his Person, and consequently had render'd himself unworthy of the Protection granted him by those Letters: That those Letters were granted not only for his own Benefit, but also for the Benefit of his Creditors; it being expressly alleg'd in the said Letters, that the Motive for granting them was, The allowing him Time to agree with his Creditors: And, that if Geneva were not a neutral Place, yet the common Good of human Society requir'd, that a Man who had injur'd himself by defrauding so many others, should not find Sanctuary any where; but that the Request of any foreign Tribunal ought, (in such a Case especially, where Impunity would visibly tend to the Ruine of all Correspondence and Trust between Merchants) to have its due Weight with that of Utrecht; which had frequently had Regard to like Requests sent to them from Brussels, Lubeck, and Hamburg. Upon the whole Matter, the Court of Justice of the Province of Utrecht, having deputed some of their Bench to hear what Huguetan had to say for himself, and also to hear what the Prosecutors had to alledge against him, did after a full Examination and mature Deliberation, confirm the foresaid provisional Sentence of the Tribunal of Geneva, and order'd it to be put in Execution. But Huguetan gave them the Slip; which occasion'd the two following Advertisements to be insert'd in our Gazettes by publick Order.

(1.) John Henry Huguetan, born at Lyons in France, long visag'd, pale Complexion, black ey'd with dark Eye-brows, of middle Stature, wearing a light Wig; had his abode for some Time in the City and Province of Utrecht; has withdrawn himself from the Execution of a Sentence obtain'd against him, having before convey'd away his Effects, and made his Escape the Night between the 9th and 10th of August in a Boor's Waggon on a Truss of Straw. Notice is hereby given, that whoever shall cause the said Huguetan to be deliver'd into the Hands of Justice, so that the said Sentence may take Effect, shall have a Reward of 1000 Ducatoons; to be paid by David Pouchoud Merchant of Utrecht.

(2.) John Henry Huguetan, mention'd in a former Gazette, came in the Boor's Waggon on a Truss of Straw the 10th of August at half an Hour past 4 in the Morning, to Rhenen, whence he hir'd a Waggon to Nymeguen, thence took another Carriage to Cleves, and there another to go further. Whoever discovers the said Huguetan, shall be well rewarded by John Tourton Merchant of Amsterdam, and the Name of the Discoverer shall be kept secret; and also the Reward mention'd in a former Gazette shall be paid on the Terms therein specified.

From

From the Fleet under Sir George Byng in the Bay of la Hogue, August 17. The 14th the Fleet set Sail from this Bay to the Westward, the Generals intending to put into the Bay of Grand Aus and see whether it might be practicable to make a Descent there. That Day the Sick Soldiers in the Transports, were all put into one Vessel, to the Number of about 140; and sent under the Convoy of the Antelope, to Plymouth. The 15th the Fleet being to the South-West off Cape la Hogue, was oblig'd by contrary Wind to alter its Course; and came and lay off Cherbourg. Yesterday some Persons were order'd to take a View of the Coast and of Cherbourg, and they being return'd reported, that it was absolutely impracticable to land the Forces there, because of the Rocks that lie all along the Coasts, and of the Forts that defend the Mouth of the inner Bay which goes up to the Town; and that while they were sounding within less than Cannon-shot of those Forts, which fired often at them, they saw a good Number of Tents pitch'd on Shore. My Lord Dursely in the Orford, with 6 other Men of War and the Marines on board, was detach'd Yesterday to the Westward to cruise in the Soundings. To Day the Fleet Anchor'd again in this Bay.
